

Integrating user accounts from family sites

By integrating user accounts of systems that required individual registration and login, all systems can be used with one ID

